The Civil Rights Act of 1964 was passed to ensure the people of the United States equal treatment, rights and opportunities regardless of race, color, or national origin. Title VI of that Act prohibits discrimination in federally funded programs.

"No person in the United States shall, on the basis of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance."

Included under National Origin is discrimination based on a person's inability to speak, read, write, or understand English. Persons whose primary language is not English can be Limited English Proficient or "LEP." These individuals may be entitled to language assistance with respect to a particular type of service, benefit, or encounter.

All programs and operations of entities that receive assistance from the federal government must comply.

Any person who applies for or receives any benefit or service provided by the Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services may file a complaint if he or she has had unfair or different treatment because of race, color, or national origin.

17.10 The subcontractor shall be required to furnish any labor, material or equipment whether shown specifically or not shown, if it is determined by the contractor this material or labor would be necessary for a complete and satisfactory job in every way.

17.11 Should the contractor request that the subcontractor perform work beyond the requirements of this contract, the contract documents, or Section 17.10 above, the following method of determining the extra cost of the work will be used: The subcontractor, upon verbal or written notice to the office or field representative, will present a written lump sum bid, within 24 hours of the notification, to the contractor. Should the contractor determine the lump sum bid is unreasonable, it will be the contractor's option to direct the subcontractor to perform the work at only the total direct cost of labor and material, plus 15 per cent (15%) overhead and profit. No indirect or supervision cost to be included. Further, it is agreed the total of the cost plus the overhead and profit will not exceed the lump sum bid for the work. Should the cost of the work exceed the lump sum cost bid, the excess will be deducted from the subcontract amount. This subcontractor will make every effort to aid completion of the extra work by others and in no way will hinder such work.

17.12 If it is agreed to waive the payment and performance bond requirements of Article 3, all payments to the subcontractor may be made jointly to the subcontractor and his suppliers.

17.13 Subcontractor agrees to fully comply with the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and any and all regulation issued pursuant thereto. Subcontractor, as a term and condition of this subcontract, is to hold the contractor harmless from any claims or charges of any kind by reason of subcontractor failing to fully comply with the act and regulations and agrees to reimburse the contractor for any fines, damages, or expenses of any kind incurred by the contractor by reason of the subcontractor's failure to comply.

17.14 It will be this subcontractor specific duty to coordinate the installation of his work with all other trades and do so well in advance of the work, so as to eliminate replacing, removing, patching or otherwise causing extra work to the contractor or other subcontractors. This subcontractor will be held accountable for all extra work by others should the contractor determine the subcontractor has not diligently attempted to coordinate his work with all other trades. Coordination will be construed to mean, but not limited to: Building in of material furnished to the subcontractor; cutting and blocking out required by other trades; providing all construction to meet all codes; coordinating millwork finish dimensions with rough openings; mechanical and electrical connections; coordination of mechanical and electrical with all other trades and codes.

17.15 It will be the subcontractor's duty to perform all work in a manner that will meet all requirements of applicable building codes. Should the plans and specifications differ from the code requirements, the contractor may require either the code construction or that detailed in the plans and specifications, whichever is more stringent or desired by the Owner. The subcontractor will then correct any work installed or revise his procedures accordingly.

17.16 In the event S. Webster Haining Co. (CONTRACTOR) is required to take any action to enforce the terms of this agreement or in the event subcontractor defaults in the performance of any of the terms and/or conditions contained herein, Subcontractor agrees to pay Contractor's reasonable attorney fees as well as all other expenses incurred in the enforcement of this agreement.

ARTICLE 18. OTHER. Subcontractor is responsible for the cleanup of his debris, removed from the jobsite daily. Subcontractor shall, unless otherwise specified, guarantee his work to be free of defects in material and workmanship for a period of twelve (12) months beginning upon the Owner's acceptance of substantial completion of this project. Subcontractor shall employ a crew of sufficient size and skills to meet the progress schedule defined by the general contractor.

This contract can be nullified at the sole option of the general contractor provided that no work has commenced hereunder. In the event of picket lines at the jobsite this subcontractor agrees to nevertheless complete all work included herein.

ARTICLE 19. This agreement shall not be assigned by the Subcontractor without first having obtained the written consent thereto of the Contractor and any attempt by the subcontractor to assign said contract shall operate as an instant repudiation of the contract by the Subcontractor and thereupon the rights of the Contractor and Subcontractor shall be determined in the same manner as though the Subcontractor had at the time of such attempted assignment failed and refused to commence or continue to perform the contract.

ARTICLE 20. The contractor, subrecipient, or subcontractor shall not discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex or national origin in the performance of this contract. The contractor shall carry out applicable requirements of 49 CFR Part 26 in the award and administration of contracts. Failure by the contractor to carry out these requirements is a material breach of this contract, which may result in the termination of this contract or such other remedy as the state deems appropriate. The contractor, subrecipient, or subcontractor shall ensure that all subcontract agreements contain this non-discrimination assurance.

ARTICLE 21. The Contractor and Subcontractor have read and fully understand all of the terms of this agreement and it is covenanted and agreed by the Contractor and the Subcontractor that all promises negotiations, understandings, or agreements of any kind prior to the date of this agreement not contained herein are hereby expressly waived and that this instrument shall constitute for the entire agreement between the Contractor and Subcontractor.

This agreement shall ensure to the benefit of and be binding upon the executors, administrators, successors and assigns of the parties hereto.

FILING A DISCRIMINATION COMPLAINT
WITH THE TENNESSEE HUMAN RIGHTS COMMISSION (THRC)

The Tennessee Human Rights Commission is an independent state agency which investigates allegations of discrimination in housing, employment, Title VI and places of public accommodations. If you feel that you have been discriminated against because of your race, color, gender, disability, national origin, religion, creed, familial status or age (40 and over) then you may file a complaint of discrimination. If the complaint is jurisdictional, then THRC will investigate the matter. Complaints of discrimination must be filed with the Commission within 180 days of the alleged discriminatory act.

Please note that a delay could occur in the investigation of your charge if the complaint is not filled out properly. To assist the Tennessee Human Rights Commission with providing efficient service to you, please make sure that you do all of the following:

- Clearly print your answers;
- Answer all questions that apply to your allegations;
- Sign and date the complaint form;
- Submit the original form to the Commission; and,
- Keep the Commission informed of any changes in your address or contact numbers.

A copy of this complaint and any documents which you attach to it, except for the witness list, will be forwarded to the respondent whom you allege discriminated against you. The respondent will be given an opportunity to respond to your allegations, and a THRC investigator will be assigned to investigate your complaint.

Title VI Notice

Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 United States Code § 2000d) and Tennessee Code Annotated § 4-21-904 provide that any entity receiving Federal financial assistance may not discriminate against their program beneficiaries or participants based on their race, color, or national origin. The Tennessee Human Rights Commission does not discriminate against any person based on race, color, national origin, gender, religion, disability, age, creed, familial status, or on any other basis legally prohibited by or protected by Federal or State law. Parties who wish to file a complaint against the Tennessee Human Rights Commission for violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 under 42 U.S.C. § 2000d or under T.C.A. § 4-21-904 should direct such complaints to either the Tennessee Human Rights Commission, the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity, or the United States Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

IMPORTANT NOTICETo file in state court: For Employment, Housing and Public Accommodation Complaints:

You, as the Complainant, have the right to hire an attorney and file a civil lawsuit in the state court system, either Chancery or Circuit, at any time during the investigation of this complaint. If you choose this option, you must file suit within one (1) year after the alleged discriminatory practice ceases, and prior to any determination being made by the Tennessee Human Rights Commission (THRC). Unlike federal law, state law does not toll the statute of limitations on your claim while your charge is being investigated and/or mediated by this agency. You are not required to file a complaint with the THRC, nor do you need the THRC's permission before you can file suit in Chancery or Circuit court. If you file a civil lawsuit in Chancery or Circuit court, then pursuant to state law, THRC must administratively close its investigation of your complaint.

If THRC issues a final determination in your case, and you subsequently file a civil lawsuit in state court asserting the same allegations as your THRC complaint, then your case may be dismissed. However, within 30 days of receipt of THRC's final determination, you may file a private action in either Chancery or Circuit court appealing the determination.

For Housing Complaints only:

If a federal law is involved, this agency will send the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) a copy of our Notice of Determination. HUD will then mail the parties a Notice of Closure of this case. Notwithstanding the determination by HUD, the Fair Housing Act provides that the complainant may file a civil action in an appropriate court within two (2) years after the occurrence or termination of the alleged discriminatory housing practice. The computation of this two-year period does not include the time during which this administrative proceeding was pending.

For Employment Complaints only:

If a federal law is involved, this agency will send the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) a copy of our Notice of Determination. The EEOC will then mail the parties a Notice of Closure of this case and/or a Right to Sue in federal court. A lawsuit must be filed in an appropriate court within ninety (90) days of receipt of the EEOC Notice of Closure/Right to Sue.

For Title VI Complaints only:

An individual has the right to file an administrative complaint against any state department or agency (recipient), or subrecipient receiving Federal financial assistance.

By signing this complaint form, you are acknowledging that you have read and understand your rights as set forth above.

Common Language Access Questions, Technical Assistance, and Guidance for Federally Conducted and Federally Assisted Programs

Attachment: S. Webster Haining & Co Bid (LOW BIDDER) (2258 : Bid for Bartlett City Hall Interior Renovation Phase 2)

COMMON LANGUAGE ACCESS QUESTIONS, TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE, AND GUIDANCE FOR FEDERALLY CONDUCTED AND FEDERALLY ASSISTED PROGRAMS

A. Why must my agency designate a primary contact person for services to limited English proficient (LEP) persons in my agency?

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Department Components regarding Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166 and his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General directed federal agencies to appoint a language access coordinator. This individual is responsible for ensuring that the agency adheres to its language access plan, policy directives, and procedures to provide meaningful access to LEP persons. The language access coordinator should report to a high-ranking official within the agency. The coordinator is responsible for language assistance services and may delegate duties but should retain ultimate responsibility for oversight, performance, and implementation of the language access plan. Federal agencies with multiple offices and divisions may find that each component or field office should designate an individual as a local language access coordinator. The language access plan should set forth the name and contact information of the responsible official(s). The language access coordinator should consider creating a working group of key stakeholders to assist in implementing and creating language access procedures for the agency. See Language Access Assessment and Planning Tool for Federally Conducted and Federally Assisted Programs

B. What are my agency's responsibilities with respect to providing Federal Financial Assistance?

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General directed federal agencies that provide Federal financial assistance to draft recipient guidance.
- Federal financial assistance includes, but is not limited to, grants and loans of federal funds; grants or donations of federal property; training; details of federal personnel; or any agreement, arrangement, or other contract which has as one of its purposes the provision of assistance. For instance, the Department of Justice provides federal financial assistance to several agencies, primarily state and local law enforcement agencies, and departments of corrections.
- Federal agencies providing federal financial assistance should obtain information and maintain records that ensure that they can determine which entities have received such assistance, including a list of subgrantees, and for what purpose the assistance has been provided.
- Federal agencies that provide Federal financial assistance must ensure that recipients of Federal financial assistance acknowledge and agree that they will comply (and require any subgrantees, contractors, successors, transferees, and assignees to comply) with applicable provisions of Federal laws and policies prohibiting discrimination, including but not limited to Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, which prohibits recipients from discriminating on the basis of race, color, or national origin (including language) (42 U.S.C. 2000d et seq.). Model assurance language can be found at http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/cor/draft_assurance_language.pdf.

- Federal agencies that provide Federal financial assistance must require recipients to obtain these assurances from their subrecipients and must maintain systems that can record and track the recipient's agreement with these assurances (28 CFR 42.105 et seq.).
- Federal agencies have a variety of mechanisms for securing recipient compliance with Title VI, including, but not limited to, executing assurances of nondiscrimination, conducting periodic compliance reviews, conducting complaint-based investigations, noncomplaint-based investigations, negotiating settlement agreements, and taking judicial action. These mechanisms are in addition to any programmatic compliance specific to the agency providing Federal financial assistance.
- Agencies must ensure that communications with recipients, including at the conclusion of a term of financial assistance documenting satisfaction with financial assistance deliverables, do not imply that the recipient was or is in compliance with Title VI.

C. Would it be helpful to have agreements with other federal agencies, subcomponents, field or district offices to provide language assistance services?

- Agreements with other subcomponents, field or district offices, or federal agencies can be a cost-effective approach to language assistance services. For example, many intelligence community components have arrangements with the National Virtual Translation Center (NVTC) to provide translations.
 - Is your agreement with the other entity in writing?
 - Is it a reciprocal arrangement?
 - How long is the agreement in place?
 - How do you ensure that both parties to the agreement are satisfied? Is there an opportunity to revisit the agreement?
- Agreements between agencies to provide interpretation or translation must also consider who will serve as interpreters or translators. For example, an agency must still ensure that any interpreter or translator working on behalf of the agency is competent.
- Generally, if your agency continues to seek language assistance services from a specific agency, you may consider drafting a written language assistance services agreement with that agency. A written document can clarify each entity's role and responsibility and can serve to memorialize and document the arrangement. This can be especially useful in the event of changes in staffing.

D. Why is it important to have a Language Access Implementation Plan, Policy Directives, and Procedures in place?

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General directed each federal agency to develop and implement a system by which LEP persons can meaningfully access the agency's services.

- A Language Access Implementation Plan helps management and staff understand their roles and responsibilities with respect to overcoming language barriers for LEP individuals. The plan is a management document that outlines how the agency has or will define language assistance tasks, set deadlines and priorities, assign responsibility, and allocate the resources necessary to come into or maintain compliance with language access requirements. It describes how the agency will effectuate the service delivery standards delineated in the policy directives, including the manner by which it will address the language service and resource needs identified in a self-assessment.
- Language Policy Directives set forth standards, operating principles, and guidelines that govern the delivery of language appropriate services. Policy directives may come in different forms but are designed to require the agency and its staff to ensure meaningful access. Policy directives should be made publicly available.
- Language Access Procedures are the "how to" for staff. They specify for staff the steps to follow to provide language services, gather data, and deliver services to LEP individuals. Procedures can be set forth in handbooks, intranet sites, desk references, reminders at counters, notations on telephone references, and the like.

E. Why is it important to modify or update your Language Access Implementation Plan and related Language Access Procedures?

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General asked each federal agency to evaluate and/or update your current response to LEP needs by, among other things, conducting an inventory of languages most frequently encountered, identifying the primary channels of contact with LEP community members (whether telephonic, in person, correspondence, web-based, etc.), and reviewing agency programs and activities for language accessibility.
- Agencies may need to update program operations, services provided, outreach activities, and other mission-specific activities to reflect current language needs. For example, changes in demographics, types of services provided, or the economy may impact the number and languages spoken by LEP individuals who participate in your agency's program or activities.
- Agencies should, where appropriate, have a process for determining, on an ongoing basis, whether new documents, programs, services, and activities need to be made accessible for LEP individuals, and they may want to provide notice of any changes in services to the LEP public and to employees.
- Each agency should establish a schedule to periodically evaluate and update agency LEP services and LEP policies, plans, and protocols. At a minimum, periodic reviews should occur on a biannual basis.

F. What are resources that might be helpful in creating, modifying, or updating a Federal agency's Language Access Implementation Plan, Policy Directives or Procedures?

- View federal agency plans, DOJ guidance documents, and other resources at www.lep.gov
- Consult with the Civil Rights Division, Federal Coordination and Compliance Section, <http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/cor/>
- Consult with frontline staff, management, or others in your office to evaluate the language services needed
- Consult with internal divisions or regional offices to assess how they provide language services
- Consult with outside experts to assess how they provide language services
- Consult with the public, non-profit organizations and other community stakeholders
- Obtain help in constructing multilingual websites at <http://www.usa.gov/webcontent/multilingual/index.shtml>

G. Why is it important to monitor the effectiveness of your Language Access Implementation Plan?

- It is important to monitor the effectiveness of your Language Access Implementation Plan in order to ensure that LEP individuals have meaningful access to agency programs or activities. In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General emphasized the need to evaluate your current response to LEP individuals. As some strategies may prove more effective than others, ongoing monitoring can help an agency fine-tune the provision of language assistance services and can potentially realize cost-savings over time.
- Some federal agencies may designate a committee or staff person to be the language access coordinator responsible for monitoring and evaluating your agency's Language Access Implementation Plan. Monitoring the effectiveness of your Plan may include:
 - Analyzing current and historical data on language assistance usage, including languages served;
 - Observing the provision of language assistance services through audits or testing;
 - Surveying staff on how often they use language assistance services, if they believe there should be changes in the way services are provided or the providers that are used, and if they believe that the language assistance services in place are meeting the needs of the LEP communities in your service area;
 - Conducting customer satisfaction surveys of LEP applicants and beneficiaries based on their actual experience of accessing the agency's programs, benefits or services;
 - Soliciting feedback from community-based organizations and other stakeholders about the agency's effectiveness and performance in ensuring meaningful access for LEP individuals;
 - Updating community demographics and needs by engaging school districts, faith communities, refugee resettlement agencies, and other local resources;
 - Considering new resources including funding, collaborations with other agencies, human resources, and other mechanisms for ensuring improved access for LEP individuals; and

- Monitoring your agency's response rate to complaints or suggestions by LEP individuals, community members and employees regarding language assistance services provided.

H. Why is it important to publish your Language Access Policy Directives or inform members of the public about the availability of language assistance services?

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General asked each federal agency to notify the public, through mechanisms that will reach the LEP communities it serves, of its LEP policies and LEP access-related developments. Examples of methods for publicizing LEP access information include, but are not limited to, posting on agency websites, issuing print and broadcast notifications, providing relevant information at "town hall" style meetings, and issuing press releases. Agencies should consult with their information technology specialists, civil rights personnel, and public affairs personnel to develop a multi-pronged strategy to achieve maximum and effective notification to LEP communities.
- Other methods for publicizing language assistance services include:
 - Posting signs in intake areas and other entry points;
 - Stating in outreach documents that language services are available from the agency;
 - Using a telephone voice mail menu to provide information about available language assistance services and how to get them;
 - Working with community-based organizations and other stakeholders to inform LEP individuals of the agency's services, including the availability of language assistance services; and,
 - Including notices in local and ethnic media.
- Agencies should provide notice about its language assistance services in languages LEP persons will understand.

I. Why is it important for Federal agencies to consult with or seek input from non-governmental organizations such as faith-based groups, civic groups, civil rights organizations, etc.?

- When language services are not readily available at a given agency or an LEP individual does not know about the availability of language assistance services, LEP individuals will be less likely to participate in or benefit from an agency's programs and services. As a result, many LEP persons may not seek out agency benefits, programs, and services; may not offer vital assistance in investigations or information that would help determine entitlement or eligibility for benefits; may not file complaints; and may not have access to critical information provided by the agency because of limited access to language services.
- Organizations that have significant contact with LEP persons, such as schools, religious organizations, community groups, and groups working with new immigrants can be very helpful in linking LEP persons to an agency's programs and its language assistance services.

- Community-based organizations provide important input into the language access planning process and can often assist in identifying populations for whom outreach is needed and who would benefit from the agency's programs and activities were language services provided.
- Community-based organizations may also be useful in recommending which outreach materials the agency should translate. As documents are translated, community-based organizations may be able to help consider whether the documents are written at an appropriate level for the audience.
- Community-based organizations may also provide valuable feedback to the agency to help the agency determine whether its language assistance services are effective in overcoming language barriers for LEP persons.

J. Why is it necessary to develop standard ways to identify non-English speakers or LEP populations for whom you would provide language assistance?

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General requested that each federal agency identify LEP contact situations and take the necessary steps to provide meaningful access. Agency staff should be able to, among other tasks, identify LEP contact situations, determine primary language of LEP individuals, and effectively utilize available options to assist in interpersonal, electronic, print, and other methods of communication between the agency and LEP individuals.
- Staff at the point of first contact with an individual must determine whether that person is LEP, must determine his/her primary language, and procure the appropriate language assistance services. Standardizing the method for identifying an LEP person and his/her language helps an agency provide consistent and meaningful access to the program or activity sought. An individual's primary language will be identified and documented utilizing one or more of the following methods:
 - 1) Use of "I Speak" Language Identification Cards; an example of such a card from the U.S. Census Bureau is available at: <http://www.justice.gov/crt/lep/resources/ISpeakCards2004.pdf>;
 - 2) Use of a language identification poster displayed in the reception or intake area;
 - 3) Verification of foreign language proficiency by qualified bilingual staff (in-person, telephonically, or through video interpretation services);
 - 4) Verification of foreign language proficiency by a qualified interpreter (in-person, telephonically, or through video interpretation services); or,
 - 5) Self-identification by the LEP individual or identification by a companion.

K. Why is it important to track the number of LEP individuals that your agency has served or who have participated in your program or activity?

- Creating a record of language assistance services can help inform agencies with respect to whether there should be changes to the quantity or type of language assistance services. For instance, agencies may decide to hire qualified bilingual staff for positions in which there is a high-incidence language need.
- Agencies should keep a record of the number of LEP individuals served, the primary language spoken by each LEP person encountered, and the type of language assistance provided (oral or written) during each encounter, if any.
- Procurement offices should also consider preparing for management an annual estimate of the cost of translation and interpretation services within the agency. This will help management ensure that resources are appropriately allocated to the most critical programs, geographic areas, or languages.

L. What are the types of language assistance services available?

- There are two primary types of language assistance services: oral and written.
 - Oral language assistance service may come in the form of “in-language” communication (a demonstrably qualified bilingual staff member communicating directly in an LEP person’s language) or interpreting. Interpretation can take place in-person, through a telephonic interpreter, or via internet or video interpreting. An interpreter is a person who renders a message spoken in one language into one or more languages. An interpreter must be competent and have knowledge in both languages of the relevant terms or concepts particular to the program or activity and the dialect and terminology used by the LEP individual. Depending upon the circumstances, language assistance services may call upon interpreters to provide simultaneous interpretation of proceedings so that an LEP person understands what is happening in that proceeding, or to interpret an interview or conversation with an LEP person in a consecutive fashion. Interpreter competency requires more than self-identification as bilingual. “Some bilingual staff and community volunteers, for instance, may be able to communicate effectively in a different language when communicating information directly in that language, but may not be competent to interpret in and out of English.”¹ Agencies should avoid using family members, children, friends, and untrained volunteers as interpreters because it is difficult to ensure that they interpret accurately and lack ethical conflicts.
 - Translation is the replacement of written text from one language into another. A translator also must be qualified and trained. Federal agencies may need to identify and translate vital documents to ensure LEP individuals have meaningful access to important written information. Vital written documents include, but are not limited to, consent and complaint forms; intake and application forms with the potential for important consequences; written notices of rights; notices of denials, losses, or decreases in benefits or services; notice of disciplinary action; signs; and notices advising LEP individuals of free language assistance services. Agencies should proactively translate vital written documents into the frequently encountered languages of LEP groups eligible to be served or likely to be affected by the benefit program or service. Agencies should also put in place processes for handling written communication with LEP individuals in less frequently encountered languages.

M. Hiring bilingual staff:

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General asked each federal agency to assess, when considering hiring criteria, the extent to which non-English language proficiency would be necessary for particular positions or to fulfill an agency's mission. For example, an agency should determine whether the agency would benefit from including non-English language skills and competence thresholds in certain job vacancy announcements, retention policies, performance appraisals, promotion plans or criteria, and position descriptions.
- An agency should consider language-sensitive deployment of qualified bilingual staff and interpreters to match skills with language needs. Senior management may also consider establishing appropriate adjustments in assignments and protocols for using bilingual staff who are employed in the agency to ensure that bilingual staff are fully and appropriately utilized.

N. How do you assess your current staff's ability to provide language assistance services?

- Quality and accuracy of the language assistance service provided by the agency is critical in order to avoid serious consequences to the LEP person and to the agency.
- Agencies must ensure that all bilingual or contracted personnel who serve as interpreters:
 - Demonstrate proficiency and ability to communicate information accurately in both English and in the other language and identify and employ the appropriate mode of interpreting (e.g. consecutive, simultaneous, summarization, or sight translation);
 - Have knowledge in both languages of any specialized terms or concepts peculiar to the Agency's program or activity and of any particularized vocabulary and phraseology used by the LEP person;
 - Understand and follow confidentiality, impartiality, and ethical rules to the same extent the Division employee for whom they are interpreting and/or to the extent their position requires;
 - Understand and adhere to their role as interpreters without deviating into a role as counselor, legal advisor, or other roles.
- Bilingual staff who communicate directly in language with LEP persons must also demonstrate proficiency in the target language and have knowledge in both languages of any specialized terms or concepts peculiar to the Agency's program or activity and of any particularized vocabulary and phraseology used by the LEP person.
- An agency should also ensure that all bilingual or contracted personnel who serve as translators understand the expected reading level of the audience and, where appropriate, have fundamental knowledge about the target language group's vocabulary and phraseology.

- An agency should periodically check the quality of translations by having a second, independent translator “check” the work of the primary translator. An agency should also consider community input and the use of audits to maintain and improve its ability to provide timely and accurate language assistance.
- Agencies may consider developing language assessment protocols to ensure that current and prospective bilingual employees who elect to use their language skills as part of their job are appropriately qualified to serve as interpreters or translators.

O. Understanding how to prioritize the languages that you should consistently accommodate using existing internal structures versus languages where you may need to seek external language assistance services to communicate with LEP individuals:

- The languages spoken by the LEP individuals with whom the agency has contact determine the languages accommodated by your agency. A distinction should be made, however, between languages that are frequently encountered by an agency and less commonly-encountered languages. Many agencies serve communities in large cities or across the country. They regularly serve LEP persons who speak dozens and sometimes over 100 different languages. To provide language assistance services, both oral and written, to all of those languages may not be possible using in-house resources. Therefore, it is important to distinguish between establishing a system for communicating with LEP individuals who speak frequently-encountered languages (e.g. hiring bilingual staff members) versus enabling access to a telephonic interpretation service for LEP individuals who speak less commonly-encountered languages.
- The extent of an agency’s obligation to provide language assistance services in multiple languages is determined by the agency on a case-by-case basis, looking at the totality of the circumstances in light of four factors:
 - the number or proportion of LEP persons served or encountered in the eligible service population;
 - the frequency with which LEP individuals come in contact with the program;
 - the nature and importance of the program, activity, or service provided by the program; and,
 - the resources available to the agency and costs

P. Using contracted interpreters or translators when your agency cannot meet the demand for language assistance services:

- When an agency cannot meet its language assistance services needs in-house, or when there are case- or management-related reasons to seek non-staff assistance, agencies typically contract with private translation or interpretation firms. An agency must ensure that any contract for language assistance services will specify responsibilities, assign liability, set pay rates, and lay out the ways in which difficulties or disputes are resolved. For example, contracted language assistance service providers must have:
 - qualified and competent translators and interpreters, including mechanisms to ensure confidentiality and avoid conflicts of interest;
 - an ability to meet the agency’s demand for interpreters;

- an ability to meet the agency's demand for translation;
 - reasonable cancellation fees;
 - on-time service delivery;
 - an acceptable emergency response time;
 - rational scheduling of qualified interpreters;
 - rapid rates of connection to interpreters via the telephone, electronically, or by video; and,
 - effective complaint resolution when translation or interpretation errors occur.
- Potential bidders for language assistance services contracts should also be required to commit to an adequate quality control process for all deliverables. This can include a process where multiple linguists review all translations before delivery. Contractors should detail their (and their independent contractors') capabilities with translation memory software. Contractors must also include the discounted prices in their final proposal that would result from using the translation memory software.

Q. Critical staff training on language access issues:

- Staff will not be able to provide meaningful access to LEP individuals if they do not receive training on language access policies and procedures, including how to access language assistance services. For policies and procedures to be effective, new and existing staff should periodically receive training on the content of the language access policy, identifying language access needs, and providing language assistance services to LEP individuals. This staff training should be mandatory for staff who have the potential to interact or communicate with LEP individuals, staff whose job it is to arrange for language support services, and managers. Training should include making procedures clear and readily available to ensure seamless provision of language assistance services.
- Bilingual staff members who communicate "in-language" to LEP individuals, or who serve as interpreters or translators should be assessed and receive regular training on proper interpreting and translation techniques, ethics, specialized terminology, and other topics as needed. Without regular assessment and training, bilingual staff may not be able to provide the language access services necessary to ensure LEP individuals have meaningful access to your agency's program.

R. Monitoring language assistance services provided in your agency:

- An agency may also consider evaluating the actual experience of accessing services from the perspective of an LEP individual. This can be accomplished by managers and supervisors through regular observation of interactions between agency staff and LEP individuals. Periodic client satisfaction surveys may also be used to assess whether LEP individuals are satisfied with the level of service provided to them.
- Agencies may also maintain partnerships with local community-based organizations and rely upon these connections for reports of inadequate language access or other language-related complaints.

S. Establishing a process for LEP individuals to provide feedback if they are denied services because of their lack of English proficiency:

- An agency must also ensure that its process for receiving feedback from LEP individuals is transparent and accessible to LEP persons. Any LEP individual must be able to communicate his or her comments or suggestions regarding the failure to provide language access or any other agency criticism. And, of course, investigations of such complaints must involve appropriate language assistance services for LEP persons or witnesses.
- Agencies should maintain a record of feedback received and any resolution based on LEP individual's comments or suggestions.

T. Resource-sharing when translating documents:

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General asked each federal agency to collaborate with other agencies to share translation resources, improve efficiency, standardize federal terminology, and streamline processes for obtaining community feedback on the accuracy and quality of professional translations for mass distribution. This affirms the General Accountability Office's (GAO) April 2010 report on Language Access: Selected Agencies Can Improve Services to Limited English Proficient Persons which notes that collaboration among federal agencies to improve LEP access through planning and providing language access could be enhanced. For example, agreements with other subcomponents, components, or federal agencies can be a cost-effective approach to language assistance services. Many intelligence community components have arrangements with the National Virtual Translation Center (NVTC) to provide translations.

U. Identifying and prioritizing documents for translation:

- Agencies should prioritize translating vital documents. A document will be considered vital if it contains information that is critical for accessing the agency's program or activities, or is required by law. Vital documents include, but are not limited to:
 - Documents that must be provided by law;
 - Complaint, consent, release or waiver forms;
 - Claim or application forms;
 - Conditions of settlement or resolution agreements;
 - Letters or notices pertaining to the reduction, denial, or termination of services or programs or that require a response from the LEP person;
 - Time-sensitive notice, including notice of hearing, upcoming grand jury or deposition appearance, or other investigation or litigation-related deadlines;
 - Form or written material related to individual rights;
 - Notice of rights, requirements, or responsibilities; and,
 - Notices regarding the availability of free language assistance services for LEP individuals.

V. Translating disaster-preparedness or emergency information:

- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General stated that, "[w]hen in an emergency or in the course of routine business matters, the success of government efforts to effectively communicate with members of the public depends on the widespread and nondiscriminatory availability of accurate, timely, and vital information." Swift and accurate communication with the general public is critical during major disasters and public-health emergencies. Consequently, an agency should ensure that LEP individuals have meaningful access to disaster-preparedness and emergency information.

W. Understanding when/how to make your website more accessible to LEP persons:

- Providing appropriate access to people with limited English proficiency is one of the requirements for managing your agency's website. An agency may determine how much information it needs to provide in other languages, based on an assessment of its website visitors.
- Public website content and electronic documents that contain vital information about agency programs and services should be translated into frequently-encountered languages to ensure meaningful access by LEP individuals.
- The use of machine or automatic translations is strongly discouraged even if a disclaimer is added. If an agency decides to use software-assisted translation, it is important to have the translation reviewed by a qualified language professional before posting it to the website to ensure that the translation correctly communicates the message.
- In his Memorandum for Heads of Federal Agencies regarding the Federal Government's Renewed Commitment to Language Access Obligations Under Executive Order 13166, the Attorney General asked each federal agency to provide a link to materials posted on your website to the Federal Coordination and Compliance Section so that it can be posted on LEP.gov.
- More information on building multilingual websites can be found at: <http://www.usa.gov/webcontent/multilingual/index.shtml>

X. Cross-agency federal resources regarding language assistance:

- View federal agency plans, DOJ guidance documents, and other resources at www.lep.gov
- Consult with the Civil Rights Division, Federal Coordination and Compliance Section, <http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/cor/>
- Contact the National Virtual Translation Center for help in obtaining translations, <http://www.nvtc.gov/>
- Obtain help in constructing multilingual websites at <http://www.usa.gov/webcontent/multilingual/index.shtml>
- Participate in the Federal Interagency Working Group on Limited English Proficiency by visiting <http://www.lep.gov/iwglep.htm> and sending an email to DOJLAWG@usdoj.gov
